INFORMED CONSENT

If deemed appropriate for my case, I hereby request and consent to the performance of chiropractic adjustments and other procedures, including various modes of physical therapy and diagnostic X-rays, on me or on the patient named below, for whom I am legally responsible.

I will have an opportunity to discuss with the doctor of chiropractic and/or with other office or clinic personal the nature and purpose of chiropractic adjustments and other procedures. I understand that results are not guaranteed.

Chiropractic Healthcare involves various techniques and modalities to achieve the best possible outcome for the patient. These include, but are not limited to the following:

1. Chiropractic Adjustment/Manipulation: A chiropractic maneuver that utilizes controlled force, leverage direction, amplitude, and velocity and which is directed at specific joints or anatomical regions. Chiropractors commonly use such procedures to influence joint and neurophysiologic function.
2. Electro-Therapy: A therapeutic treatment to aid in the relief of pain and promotion of soft tissue healing. Also causes stimulation of innervated muscle to cause contraction, which helps force fluid out of the lymphatic and interstitial tissues thereby reducing edema. Also helps stimulate the release of endorphins, which are the body natural painkillers.
3. Myofascial Release Technique: Relaxes overactive muscles in and helps stretch chronically shortened muscles. Helps restore normal elasticity to the muscles, ligaments and tendons.
4. Manual Traction: Involves force acting on longitudinal axis to draw structures apart. Induces passive motion into the spine for the purpose of stretching spinal joints and increasing mobility.
5. Mobilization: Movement applied singularly or repetitively within or at the physiologic range of joint motion, without imparting a thrust or impulse, with the goal of restoring mobility.
6. Decompression Therapy: Involves force acting on a longitudinal axis to draw structures apart. Induces passive motion into the spine for the purpose of stretching spinal joints and increasing mobility, done by a computerized device.

It is common for chiropractic adjustments, traction, massage therapy, exercise, etc. to result in a temporary increase in soreness in the region being treated. This is nearly always a temporary symptom that occurs while your body is undergoing therapeutic change. It is not dangerous, but please tell your treating chiropractor about it.

I understand that, as in the practice of medicine, in the practice of chiropractic there are some risks to the treatment, including but not limited to; fractures, disc injuries, strokes, dislocations, and sprains. I do not expect the doctor to be able to anticipate and explain all risks and complications and I wish to rely upon the doctor to exercise judgment during the course of the procedure, which the doctor feels at the time, based upon the facts then known to him or her is in my best interest.

I have read, or have had read to me, the above consent. I have also had an opportunity to ask questions regarding this consent and by signing below, agree to the above named procedures. I intend this consent form to cover the entire course of treatment for my present condition and for any future condition(s) for which I seek treatment.
